

Herbert Edelsbrunner
Arts and Sciences Professor
Computer Science and Mathematics
Duke University
Durham, North Carolina 27708
Email: edels@cs.duke.edu

Abstract:

Element Quality and Tetrahedral Meshes

The element quality of a tetrahedron is often expressed in terms of angles or aspect ratios of various kinds. We survey geometric and algorithmic methods for generating meshes with good quality tetrahedra. We will pay special attention to Delaunay triangulations and to slivers, which are fairly flat tetrahedra that are particularly difficult to prevent.